Excerpt: .AND WELFARE The success of the work undertaken by the various committees heretofore outlined resulted in a great increase in the scope of the work and its usefulness. This necessitated the organization of a central station to assist the efforts of the committees and all other efforts which were being made among the subsidiary companies to improve the conditions of their employees. Accordingly, in March, 1911, the Bureau of Safety, Sanitation and rVelfare was organized. This Bureau is in charge of a manager, whose entire time is given to the work of obtaining iinformation and disseminating it among the subsidiary companies. The Bureau also carries on the administrative work of both the Committee on Safety and the Committee on Sanitation. It distributes to the subsidiary companies comparative statements on accident prevention, compiled from reports submitted by the companies periodically, thus enabling each company to benefit by the experience of all the others. The Bureau is constantly in communication with municipal, state and national authorities, with other employers of labor and with many other persons engaged or interested in this work. From many sources it obtains valuable information on these subjects, and keeps the subsidiary companies informed ofthe latest and best methods of accident prevention and welfare work. It was realized from the beginning that cooperation between those carrying on this work is a valuable feature. While the Bureau was installed primarily for the benefit of the Subsidiary Companies of the Corporation, many other employers...
